First of Winter Stage Offerings

Three one-act plays will be presented at 8:30 Friday evening, January 28. The program, consisting of a fantasy, a dialogue, and a farce comedy, has been arranged informally by players who have appeared in Carmel's summer productions. It is offered in the hope that others who are interested in the theatre will come forward with proposals for programs and offers of service for future evenings, making plays a part of the community life through the winter.

It is felt that such a season would allow of experiments in casting, in methods of production, and choice of dramatic material. The further hope of the players is to augment the personnel from which Carmel plays are cast by reviving the interest of veterans and utilizing in more mature roles the young people who have contributed to the success of children's plays in other years. Especially do they desire to bring into participation both newcomers to Carmel and those who, although for some time resident here, have hesitated to take an active part.

The admission receipts will be used to pay expenses, and any surplus devoted to the betterment of conditions under which the plays are given. Tickets for the plays may be obtained at the Pine Cone office, Hand's, Carmel Bakery, the hotels, tea rooms, and high school students and members of their families may obtain them from Miss Louise Prince. Application for tickets may be made through the mail by addressing W. T. Kibbler, who is serving as financial agent.

Pies Ought to be Cheaper

A species of blackberry, nearly four times as large as the domestic garden variety, has been discovered in Colombia by American scientists and is being experimented on by the Department of Agriculture with a view of distribution to farmers. The giant berry was discovered by Dr. Frank M. Chapman of the American Museum of National History in a remote forest region of Colombia.

He Gave Them the Run

Surveyor Lou Hare Dead

L. H. Hare of Salinas, former county surveyor for Monterey county, and a native of San Jose, was found dead in a dressing room of the Del Monte bath house at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, a few minutes after he had retired to resume his clothing after an hour's sport in the swimming tank. Mr. Hare was well-known in Carmel.

The Official Name is Point Carmel

In order to expedite a discussion which had arisen regarding the official name of the picturesque cape which marks the southwest point of Carmel Bay, a member of the Pine Cone staff visited the office of the Coast and Geodetic Survey in San Francisco. There it was learned from official charts, one of which is now on exhibition in the Pine Cone office, that the official name of that locality is Point Carmel.

On page 77 of the United States Coast Pilot, published in 1917, at the Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., is printed, "Point Carmel, the southern point at the entrance to Carmel Bay, is an irregular, jagged, rock point, 100 feet high."

Davidson's Coast Pilot, published in 1889, also gives the name as Point Carmel, and in a foot note states that it was once, locally, known to whalers as Point Lobos.

At the Geodetic office it was learned that a triangulation station was established on a southeastern point of Point Carmel which was called Point Lobos, but on the completion of the surveys that station was abandoned.

The southern point of the Golden Gate, at the entrance to San Francisco Bay, is officially designated Point Lobos.

In Honor of Teddy

A slab of limestone taken from Culebra Cut on the Panama Canal has been placed beside the grave of Theodore Roosevelt, who brought about the building of that waterway. The stone, cut from a spot sixty feet above where President Roosevelt made an address in 1916, was presented by "The Canal Zone Children." It was placed before the grave of the former President. The ceremonies were attended by the Roosevelt family and the school children of Oyster Bay.

Missionary Meeting

China is the country which will be considered by the Carmel Missionary Society at the regular monthly meeting, Wednesday, January 26, 3 p. m., at the Presbyterian Chapel, corner Eight and Dolores. At this first meeting in the "Glad New Year," all the members are earnestly requested to be present, and each bring a friend with her.

Nothing But Talk

Not much was accomplished at the City Trustees' meeting on Tuesday evening, owing to the absence of Engineer Fisher and Attorney Osburn. There was a large attendance of property owners, who heard with much interest the discussion of tentative plans to improve Ocean avenue. Public opinion is unanimous that this work should be completed before next summer.

Family Suffrage

BY W. SCOTT, A. B.

Written for the Pine Cone.

The claim that family suffrage when there is minor offspring should be granted in California and other states seems just. The Belgian suffrage law gives a parent with minor offspring an additional vote as trustee, guardian or representative of such offspring.

The representative character of suffrage was common in the early history of the American colonies, for they were mostly settled by families. Suffrage, however, has become individualistic, and the welfare of the family is endangered. A man who undertakes to bring up a family decently and safely meets obstacles and perils owing somewhat to the lack of a direct share in government as trustee of minor offspring.

Suffrage reduced to lowest terms is a man or woman, twenty-one years or more of age, with certain specified qualifications. The number of minors in the United States is twenty or more per cent of the entire population.

Political society is made up of two units, the individual and the family. The one is the working, industrial or economic unit of society; the other the unit for the preservation and continuance of society. Both should have a direct share or status in government. Every reason on which individual suffrage rests is valid for family suffrage. The ballot is a shield, to protect; a tool, to build good government; a weapon, to remove an unfaithful or incompetent public servant. All these, the family equally with the individual requires for its safety and welfare.

Much legislation, as education, police protection, housing, parks and playgrounds, sanitation, care of minors, divorce, etc., touches the family directly, and strangely enough the family as such has no share in this connection.

The electorate as constituted has many persons unintelligent and uninterested as to family life, and such are incompetent for legislation or administration of laws as applied to family welfare. The present situation in California and other states, where the criminal class is much in evidence, an element unfortunately more or less permanent, emphasizes the need of investing the family with minor offspring with an adequate and direct share in government by family suffrage. For full (state and federal) suffrage, constitutional amendment is necessary, but local (town and municipal) suffrage is statutory, and the present Legislature might in the near future provide for local family suffrage, which comes nearest to the home and family.

The Wonders of America

By T. T. MAXEY

UTAH—"THE PROMISED LAND."

FIRST settled in the summer of 1847 by Brigham Young and his little band of Mormons, numbering less than 150 souls, Utah is fast coming into its own. Utah is 7,000,000 acres larger than all of the New England states combined, and there isn't much, if, indeed, there is anything—within reason—that the imagination of man can conceive or his heart wish for that the state does not yield or cannot offer.

'Tis said that Utah contains enough iron ore to rebuild most of the steel structures in the country; sufficient black marble to build a column from the earth to the moon; salt enough to supply the world for 60 years; the greatest copper mine in all the world; enough coal to supply her population for 60,000 years; clay and sand enough to make the world's supply of brick for many years; 4,000,000,000 feet of lumber and sandstone and granite in quantities equal to the rebuilding of the majority of the buildings in the United States.

Gold, silver, copper, lead and zinc to the value of $07,000,000 were mined in Utah during one recent year. Goodly quantities of agricultural products and fruit are also produced.

Utah's climate is neither hot, cold, dry or wet, but rather a happy medium with a touch of salt air added for good measure. Her fertile valleys remind one of Italy, her pointed mountains hold a touch of Alpine beauty and great painters say that her sunsets are the most beautiful in the world.

MORAL SUASION TO SUCCEED LEGAL FORCE

A ray of hope for Mr. and Mrs. Ordinary Folk has penetrated the "anti-everything" barrage thrown out by the numerous societies for the prevention of something that many law abiders find enjoyment in doing.

Miss Alice Robertson, who will represent the opinions of her Oklahoma neighbors in the incoming Congress, is quoted as saying, "I am against this fad of trying to legislate morals into people; it just can't be done."

Philosophers, ancient and modern, preach the doctrine that enlightenment as to the evil result of vicious acts proves to be the most practicable method of preventing them. Statesmen of many countries now lean to the belief that drastic laws defeat themselves. There is ever present in the natures of all races of human beings an active resentment against being forced to do something and a willingness to refrain from something if shown that it is harmful to themselves.

Miss Robertson's attitude toward new laws might be adopted by some of her colleagues in Congress with resultant benefit to their constituents, and studied to advantage by those who contemplate making laws to regulate the morals and manners of the public. Should the multitude of our people, who are striving to obey the mandates of our law-makers, find laws very burdensome because of their character and number and habitually neglect to obey some of them, censors of public manners and morals might exercise more judgement and discretion in urging legislators to enact new parental laws.

On another page of this number appears a news article relative to the official name of our future national playground. Point Carmel or Point Lobos by any other name, without a toll gate, will delight residents and tourist because of its natural beauties, and attract crusading artists to this point most graciously endowed by nature.

Sunset School teachers, because of overcrowded school rooms, are unable to do justice to their teaching methods or to their pupils. Permanent pupils are crowded together at one desk for several, when each should have a desk; four pupils were observed to be without desks. This condition should be corrected by voting a bond issue to provide funds for enlargement.

CARMEL PINE CONE PRESS

Books and Authors

That much discussed book, "Margot Asquith; an Autobiography," will doubtless leave most readers with mingled sensations of distaste and disappointment. She writes of her indiscretions, excised and unexcised, but it is not discretion that is lacking so much as reticence, plainly offensive to good taste. Two critical analysis of her own character may be mentioned as extremely well done and in many ways acute and penetrating, although the reader is left with a complete realization of the excess ego possessed by the author. Of course, there is another side to the memoirs. A clever, even brilliant, woman who has moved from her early youth in an exceptionally interesting society, knowing most people worth knowing in England of the last two generations, Mrs. Asquith can write of them with the authority of intimacy. These pages show how it was that she was able to count as her warmest friends such men as Gladstone and Benjamin Jowett. But with all the material for interesting memoirs that Mrs. Asquith should have stored away in her mind she has given us relatively very little that is of permanent value.

From a woman on whom the pursuit of literature was urged again and again by men like Jowett, Symonds and John Morley, we should certainly have looked for more solid evidence of literary capacity than is given in these two volumes. Beyond an epigrammatic cleverness and a certain talent for apt characterization the author shows little to justify the high esteem in which her talents were held by men who were really competent judges of such matters. Probably the same explanation accounts for Mrs. Asquith's disappointing literary qualities as for her errors in good taste—an exaggerated ego.

"The Psychology of Social Reconstruction," by George Thomas White Patrick is a discussion of the causes of discontent.

Psychology has come to be an overworked and much abused word, for it is used to explain all seemingly unusual action. So it is with interest one reads that the world is full of opportunity, amusement and excitement. Poor men have today what rich men felt was beyond their means yesterday, and malcontents abound. We, with all our possessions, reach out and around for more. We claim we wish to be free, when the sweetest achievement we know is to get as many people as possible under our control. This is good psychology. Those who believe in the abolition of capital, as well as those who fancy that labor is being pampered should study it, and it would not be a dull book for those who merely stand aside and watch the world move on.

Marguerite Audoux, the brilliant author of "Marie Claire" has at last given us another book, "Marie Claire's Workshop," in which she tells, so charmingly, so simply, and yet so minutely detailed, a lovely tale. This story is told with sympathy, grace and a fine, sure artistry, and is a good example of the effect to be gained by the simplest, most direct and most restrained method.

Kitten Found in Mail Sack From England

New York.—Two longshoremen were unloading the 6,100 mail sacks brought over by the Aquitania. One of the sacks stirred as it lay on the pier. The sack was found to be bonded mail, to open which is a felony, unless you have an official right to. They took it to the post office where it was found to have been sealed ten days before in England. It was then opened and from it was taken a kitten about six months old, gaunt and weak, its voice frayed, but its appetite intact.

JUNIOR RED CROSS WORKING AT HOME

Production of Sound American Citizenship the First Aim, -Says Dr. Farrand.

On the badge of every member of the Junior Red Cross are the words "I Serve." That tells the story of the school children's branch of the American Red Cross and its efforts to bring happiness to children throughout the world

Realizing that the time never was so propitious as right now for teaching the highest ideals of citizenship, the entire present program of the Junior Red Cross has been framed under the very inclusive phrase, "Training for Citizenship Through Service" for others. Since the Junior Red Cross is the agency through which the American Red Cross reaches the schoolboys and the schoolgirls, all its activities are designed to come within the regular school program, and without creating new courses or increasing the number of studies to lend its aid in vitalizing the work of the schools.

"The thing that is needed," says Dr. Livingston Farrand, Chairman of the American Red Cross Central Committee, "is not a perpetuation of the Junior Red Cross, but the training and breeding of sound American citizenship inspired by the true, fundamental ideals of sound democracy. One of the great conceptions in making the Red Cross a contributor to better citizenship in our American democracy is the realization that after all the sole hope of any nation is with the children of the country."

The plan of organization of the Junior Red Cross makes the school—public, parochial and private—the unit, not the individual pupils. Mutual service, helpful community work such as clean-up campaigns, care of the sick, promotion of health regulations, participation in civic and patriotic movements—all these creative agencies designed to translate into life and action the regular school program are parts of the machinery which the Junior Red Cross places at the disposal of the school authorities.

Graded study courses giving practical methods of civic training, supplemented by pamphlets and helpful suggestions, are supplied to the local schools by the Junior Red Cross. An elaborate plan for promoting an interchange of correspondence between children in different sections of the United States as well as with children in foreign lands is being devised and will take a prominent place in the established classroom program.

In promoting the general cause of child welfare, Red Cross courses in home hygiene and care of the sick, first aid, and dieting may be established in all Junior Red Cross Auxiliaries.

The ideals and the objective of the Junior Red Cross are embodied in the pledge of service which the pupil takes when he signs the membership roll and pins on his coat the Junior's badge. The pledge which binds together service and citizenship reads:

"We will seek in all ways to live up to the ideals of the Junior Red Cross and devote ourselves to its service.

"We will strive never to bring discredit to this, our country, by any unworthy act.

"We will revere and obey our country's laws and do our best to inspire a like reverence and obedience in those about us.

"We will endeavor in all these ways, as good citizens, to transmit America greater, better and more beautiful than she was transmitted to us."

At the foundation of this school program of the Junior Red Cross is a great love for America's children.

Interesting Art News

Francis McComas, one of the earliest painters of the Peninsula, has returned from a very successful trip to New York. In fact, he returns covered with glory, having received the highest commendation from the New York critics.

Percy Gray has just contributed another picture to the Schussler galleries. This versatile artist has been sketching the rugged cliffs around Montara recently, and this summer he plans to paint in Carmel.

Armin Hansen also has at the same galleries two of his characteristically fine marines.

Francis Todhunter, manager of the Art Department of the H. K. McCann Company, has been instrumental in arranging a unique art exhibition of Western painters in the heart of the business district of San Francisco. The paintings will include all work that is worthy of a public showing of water colors, pen and pencil, pastel, etching and dry point and sculpture. It will be an invitation exhibition and will be held in the McCann Building, on Montgomery street, from February 25 to March 5. Mr. Todhunter is well known in Carmel, where he comes each year to paint, and Carmel artists will no doubt be well represented at the exhibition. The committee on invitation includes Prof. A. B. Clark of Stanford, Maurice Del Mue, Maynard Dixon, C. S. Duncan, Robert Kear foot, J. N. Laurvik, Spencer Macky, Prof. Roi Partridge, Ralph Stackpole, and Francis Todhunter.

TAUGHT USE OF PLOWSHARE

How Legendary Chinese Emperor Is Said to Have Encouraged Agriculture in That Country.

In Europe the most significant of the gifts of the soil are wheat and flax; in China they are silk and rice. Old Chinese myths name Shen-nung or Siennung the "divine laborer," a legendary emperor who is said to have reigned in the first half of the third millennium before Christ, as the father of agriculture. It was he who first made a wooden plowshare and taught the people how to use it. Shennung was one of the three emperors whom legend reveres as founders of the Chinese social system. It was Shen-tsan, or Sien-tsan, the wife of Huang-ti, another of the three, who taught the people the rearing of silk worms and the treatment of cocoons and threads and the weaving of silken garments, so that her subjects might no longer suffer from "chapped and frost-bitten skin."

The sanctuary of Shen-nung is still standing, south of Pekin, R. Meyer Riefstahl writes in Asia Magazine. Here the last emperor of China used to come every year to bring a sacrifice to the presiding divinity and to open a furrow in the soil with his own hands. The ceremony is very ancient. Even in the sixth century there was an imperial field that formed a sanctuary fourteen li south of the capital. There, in the first months of spring, on a day of good augury, sacrifices of a steer, a sheep and a pig were made to Shen-nung and to Hou-tsi. The emperor, clad in his state robes and the ritual bonnet, entered the golden charlot of state and performed thrice the ritual of sacrifice. After this the ceremony of plowing took place.

To the north of the city, in olden times, Shen-tsan had an altar. Later the shrine was transferred to the precinct of the palace, where the empress presided over the rearing of silkworms and the production of silk. Old records mention the mulberry grove of the empress and her pavilion for the rearing of silkworms. Toward the middle of spring, in ancient times, the chief of the court would summon the empress to the grounds north of the city to begin the rearing of silkworms. The ladies of the palace and the wives of high dignitaries aided her in the task. After fasting and sacrificing to Shen-tsan, the empress and the concubines of the emperor themselves gathered the mulberry leaves. The silk obtained was used for the sacrificial robe of the emperor.

Music Matters

Mrs. Margaret Cameron Pierce, a resident of San Francisco and the bay districts since 1854, and a leader in music circles, died at her Berkeley home last week, following a lingering illness. She was seventy years of age, a native of Philadelphia, and was the wife of James H. Pierce, manager of Cloyne Court. One of the surviving daughters, Miss Lucy Pierce, has frequently attended the Carmel Summer School of Art

Amelita Galli-Curci, Chicago grand opera prima donna, became the wife of Homer Samuels, her piano accompanist, at the home of the latter's parents, Minneapolis, at noon last Saturday. The ceremony was of the utmost simplicity. Only nine persons, in addition to the bridal couple and the minister, were present.

Mitnitzky, the great Russian violinist, who arrived in the United States recently for an American concert debut and tour, was being interviewed for the press. As usual, the American interviewer had jazz music as a theme.

"I suppose," the writer observed, "you were surprised at the prevalence of jazz music in this country. Were you perplexed by it?"

"Oh, dear no," the violinist answered. "You see I have traveled a great deal and am familiar with Chinese orchestras. There isn't much difference."

Very Bad Indeed.

"You are not eating very much, Mr. Shyful," said the girl coyly to the bashful suitor, who had been invited to the family Christmas dinner.

"Yes," he replied, and at last, for the first time during the evening, he got his chance, so seizing all his courage, he gasped:

"To sit next to you, Miss Betty, is to lose one's appetite."

ELDER ENDS KISSING BEE

Knocks Out Negro Preacher in Kansas City Who Tried to Smack Wife.

Kansas City, Mo.—Rev. J. Pullum, a negro preacher, occupied the pulpit of the Church of Brotherly Love, Kansas City, Kan. After expounding on the love each Christian should bear for his fellow, Brother Pullum demonstrated by kissing the women.

Moses Phillips, an elder, not grasping Brother Pullum's viewpoint, threw a lighted lamp at the preacher just as Mrs. Moses Phillips was about to receive an ardent smack from the parson, and Brother Pullum went down. The lamp was the only one, and in the darkness the preacher escaped and complained to the police, but after Phillips explained the provocation, he was freed.

DOGS AT FUNERAL OF MASTER

Whaddon, Eng.—Twenty-one pairs of hounds filed solemnly past the grave at the funeral of William Selby-Lowndes, a well-known English country squire of the old school, who had been master of the Whaddon hounds for 25 years.

The village churchyard overlooks the famous Whaddon chase. After the burial service, the members of the hunt led the famous Whaddon Chase pack past the flower-lined grave.

Shelbyville, Ind. — E. C. Linville and wife and Mrs. Linville's father, J. A. Eaton, aged eighty-eight, living 17 miles from this town, came here for the first time in 17 years. Eaton said the last time he was in town was the "day of the big ox roast." Eaton has never seen a picture show and refused to witness a performance while here.

Discovered She Had Negro Blood, Now Seeks Divorce

Mrs. Mary LeFevre of San Francisco, strikingly beautiful and possessor of charming old South manners, said in her petition for divorce, filed recently, that two years after her marriage to Frederick LeFevre, Louisiana planter, she discovered there was negro blood in her veins. This, she felt, was an insurmountable barrier, for her pride equaled that of her husband's for his family name. She said her husband pleaded with her to forget it, but this she is unable to do, after consulting scientists, who said the negro strain might come to the surface generations ahead.

Dramatic Notes

By far the most interesting experiment of the New York season is that of Fritz Leiber, a new Shakespeareen star of high promise. He closed an engagement of a fortnight with a record for attendance which perhaps has never before been equalled. More than 40,000 persons saw sixteen performances of seven plays.

Reginald Travers, director of the San Francisco Players Theater, who returned last week from a six weeks' visit in New York, announced that he has obtained the rights for several novelties to be presented during the spring season, scheduled to begin about the middle of February. Two of Lord Dunsany's plays, "The Queen's Enemies" and "A Night at the Inn;" Philip Moeller's comedy, "Madame Sand," and Stuart Walker's "Jonathan Makes a Wish" are among those to be staged. Travers also brought a number of light opera scores.

Miss Melba Berry, daughter of Henry Berry of San Francisco, is to play the leading comedy role in the production of "Trelawney of the Wells," to be staged tomorrow evening at Stanford University by the Masquers' Club. Gordon Davis, who was recently in Carmel, the university dramatic coach, is in charge of the production. Miss Berry's home is in Palo Alto, and she is a member of the Alpha Phi sorority. The Pinero drama is one of the most ambitious performances attempted by the college actors.

"I must have a part to suit me," said the young actress. "I am always one of the principals in Forest Theatre productions, and I'm usually a big success."

"You must allow me to be the best judge of a suitable cast," was the producer's reply. A few nights later, at rehearsal, the cast chosen was read out, and the name of the budding Nazimova was omitted. "Why am I not given a part?" she asked in a great rage. "You have not been overlooked," the great man replied—"You are to be the first onion in the 'Tents of the Arabs.'"

MORE OR LESS TRUTH

Handsome is as handsome seldom does.

An adage that cuts all around must be a circular saw.

Don't make fun of a fool unless you are in the same boat.

Some women speak much to a man's heart and little to his mind.

An ignorant wise man is less dangerous than an educated fool.

Canned fruits are sealed proposals for interior department supplies.

Great riches are as hard to lose as a good name—and just as easy.

Every inventor worthy of the name has produced at least one car coupler.

WITTY REMARKS

To the gouty all things are gouty.

Of all the arts love is the greatest.est.

A man is allowed to think, but not aloud.

Falling in love is largely an affair of habit.

To sacrifice an epigram on the altar of tact is the last martyrdom of man.
